Course content

The course Critical Practices, which spans the third semester of the Master's programme, prepares the students for their Exam Projects and Master Theses.

The course is divided into three modules:

- Processes 3, 10 credits
- Practices 3, 10 credits
- Research and Reflection 3, 10 credits

The Processes module focuses on the conceptualization and overall process design of the students' Exam projects. In this module there is an emphasis on research, concept and script development, and dramaturgical framing. This module also includes the detailed preparation of the collaborations and the preproduction work of creating the conditions for carrying out the project. There is attention given to exploring curatorial approaches, and to questions of spectatorship and participation, including ethical considerations that need to be taken into account during the preparatory phase of a work.

The parallelly running Practices module includes a workshop with a guest artist who is engaged in creating work with specific communities and in partnership with social/cultural institutions. Through practical exercises and experiments during this workshop the students address and explore initial ideas and dilemmas pertaining to their Exam projects.

The Research and Reflection module during this semester is concentrated on the development of theoretical and practical foundations for artistic research and artistic development work. In this module, there will be discussions and seminars on artistic research, research ethics, working methods and knowledge-production in the field of research-based art practice. The module serves as a bridge between the master's programme and the doctoral programme, as well as a bridge leading towards the students' writing of their Master's thesis.

Course design

The teaching consists of a workshop, seminars, lectures, individual supervision, as well as peer-to-peer and staff-led practice-, theory- and feedback-sessions.

Throughout the semester there are ongoing practice sessions, sharing and feedback moments, providing a continuous platform for experimentation, tryouts, exchange and guidance in the development of the conceptual frame and preliminary materials of the Exam project. The trajectories of the students are shared and supported in a collective setting by peers, staff, advisors and guests. Additionally, documentation of specific working processes of selected performing arts practices and projects will be referenced and reviewed as case-studies and possible examples.

The Processes module is based on a student-led study plan with additional supervision, in order to create the overall process-design for the upcoming Exam project. The Practices module includes workshops, seminars and lectures, as well as regular peer-to-peer studio practice sessions and feedback sessions dedicated to the development of the concepts and initial materials of the students' Exam projects. The Research and Reflection module combines input during group seminars and individual assignments and guidance.

Assessment

Examinations consist of continuous assessments by supervisors during recurring supervision, and after implementation and presentation of various projects. In addition, written and oral reflection on a given course material may occur.

The course offers regular exams, re-exams in close connection with the regular exam as well as an examination opportunity for courses that have been completed in the past academic year (catch-up exams). The individual supervision is limited to the semester the student was first registered to the course. Exceptions can be made if there are special reasons.

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.
